Hassle free, cost effective and time committed delivery at your door step is our strength. Our strong Integrity Policy, Privacy Policy, vision and mission statement have made us the unbeatable leader in the field of ExperienceCertificate Attestation in India.

On reading of the following process and details, please keep in mind that the HRD and Higher Education Department never attest any non educational certificates or commercial certificates and these certificates will be attested by other departments like General Administrative Department (GAD), Regional Attestation Center (RAC), Home Department, Sub Divisional Magistrate (SDM), Chambers of Commerce, Ministry of Foreign Affairs (MoFA), Ministry of External Affairs (MEA) etc. The under mentioned process of attestation is in general and practices in India.

From the viewpoint of Certificates Attestation, the certificates could be divided into three types and these are Educational Certificates, Non Educational Certificates and Commercial Certificates. All these above mentioned three types of Indian Certificates could be attested or legalized from any foreign Embassy or Consulate present in Delhi, Mumbai, Chennai or Kolkata: India. To reach the final Attestation the ExperienceCertificate, it has to pass through some mandatory primary attestation process from various authorized Indian authority. The ExperienceCertificate attestation for primary, secondary and tertiary depends upon the purpose of the attestation and the country where it will be used. The attestation authorities for attestation of ExperienceCertificate are General Administrative Department (GAD),

Regional Attestation Center (RAC), Home Department, Sub Divisional Magistrate (SDM), Human Resource Development (HRD), Ministry of Higher Education, Ministry of Foreign Affairs (MoFA), Ministry of External Affairs (MEA) etc. The detail description of ExperienceCertificate Attestation are as under,

ExperienceCertificate could be attested or legalized from any foreign Embassy or Consulate present in India after the Attestation of competent Government organization designated by the Government of India. The Governmental organizations are General Administrative Department (GAD), Regional Attestation Center (RAC), Home Department, Sub Divisional Magistrate (SDM), Human Resource Development (HRD), Higher Education Department etc. and the designated signatory may be the Section Officer, Deputy Commissioner, Commissioner, Magistrate, Sub Divisional Magistrate, Commissioner, Resident Commissioner, Secretary, Chief Secretary, Joint Secretary, Assistant Secretary, Director, Deputy Director, Registrar etc. Once the ExperienceCertificate has attested from the designated authority in India, and then this ExperienceCertificate will be attested by Ministry of External Affairs (MEA) or Ministry of foreign Affairs (MoFA), New Delhi, Mumbai, Chennai, Kolkata: Government of India and finally the ExperienceCertificate will be attested by the destination country's Embassy or consulate present in India. The above mentioned ExperienceCertificate Attestation process is applicable if the destination country is a non Hague Conventional Country (Non-HCC).

In practical, the above mentioned ExperienceCertificate Attestation process is very much time consuming and cost demanding. To overcome the unavoidable circumstances, apart from the above discussed ExperienceCertificate Attestation procedure, there is a very old ExperienceCertificate Attestation process is practiced in India. In this process the ExperienceCertificate firstly will be Attested by the Home Department, Mumbai (Mumbai Mantralaya) after that the ExperienceCertificate will be Attested by Ministry of External Affairs (MEA) or Ministry of Foreign Affairs (MoFA), Delhi: India. Once the ExperienceCertificate has Attested from Home Department, Mumbai (Mumbai Mantralaya) and Ministry of External Affairs (MEA) or Ministry of Foreign Affairs (MoFA), Delhi: India then this ExperienceCertificate will finally be attested by the destination country's Embassy or consulate present in India. The said process is very old practiced; most popular, well recognized as well as cost effective and time effective. This attestation process is most respectful, well known and highly acceptable attestation process in India and acceptable by ninety nine percent countries across the globe.

Point to be noted that, the above discussed ExperienceCertificate Attestation process is an alternate attestation process but it is genuine as well as well acceptable attestation process for approximately all Countries across the Globe. In the same time, some Countries are very particular for ExperienceCertificate Attestation process and they require the state level attestation / authentication (GAD, HRD, Home Department, Higher Education Department etc) on the ExperienceCertificate prior to the attestation from Ministry of External Affairs (MEA) or Ministry of Foreign Affairs (MoFA) as well as their Embassy or Consulate attestation or legalization in India.

Apart from the above said alternate ExperienceCertificate Attestation process, there is another alternate ExperienceCertificate Attestation process is also practiced in India and this process of ExperienceCertificate Attestation is in use in maximum level now a day in India. In this process the ExperienceCertificate issued from anywhere in India, firstly will be Attested from Sub Divisional Magistrate (SDM), New Delhi after that the ExperienceCertificate will be attested from Ministry of External Affairs

(MEA) or Ministry of Foreign Affairs (MoFA), Delhi, Mumbai, Chennai, Kolkata: India. When the ExperienceCertificate has attested from the above two departments then this ExperienceCertificate will finally be Attested by the destination country's Embassy or Consulate present in India. The said process is also an alternate, genuine and acceptable process for maximum number of Countries across the globe. But point to be noted that some ExperienceCertificate could never be attested through this process and in the same time, some Countries are very particular for ExperienceCertificate Attestation process and they require the state level attestation / Authentication (GAD, HRD, Home Department, Higher Education Department etc) on the ExperienceCertificate prior to the attestation from Ministry of External Affairs (MEA) or Ministry of Foreign Affairs (MoFA) as well as their Embassy or Consulate attestation or legalization in India.

Note:

HRD and Higher Education Department never attests any non-educational or commercial certificates. All the above said Experience Certificate Attestation process, the Attestation from Notary is mandatorily require. The attestation from Notary could be completed from anywhere in India for any Indian Experience Certificate. But some country requires the Notarization from the state of issuance of the Experience Certificate. All the Attestation process will be done on the original Experience Certificate. Some Country requires the translation copy of the attested or legalized Experience Certificate issued in India in English language to their own country's languages. The translation requirement could vary from Country to Country, as some country requires the Translated Experience Certificate after the whole Attestation process and on the other hand some Country requires the Translated Experience Certificate to be attested. Also some country requires both the original as well as Translated Experience Certificate to be attested. Some Country requires the fresh / reissued Attested Experience Certificate. In that case the issuance of the Experience Certificate and the complete attestation will be within six months. To attest the Experience Certificate from the above said various departments, there is no requirement of presence of the Experience Certificate holder or their relatives.
